Adapter plate for relocation of injectors in KTM models with TPI system.
Relocation of injectors from cylinder ports to single port right before reed valve.
What benefits do you gain? Now you can premix gas with oil as a regular carbureted engine. This fuel mixture gets through the complete crankcase system and effectively lubricates the crankshaft rod and upper wrist pin. You are getting superior lubrication without bogging spots and stalling at very low RPMs. You also gain some power mid-range without losing fuel efficiency. As known, the original style oil injector has a very short life span and causes significant engine damage due to lack of lubrication.

Installation guide and tips:

Please ensure all parts are thoroughly cleaned before installation.
In order to relocate the injectors, you have to remove the fuel tank, as well as the expansion chamber. Remove the bracket which connects the cylinder head to the frame. Remove the reed valve by taking out four bolts which hold the valve. Next, connect the new adapter to the intake reed valve. Now relocate injectors directly onto the new plate. Apply some lubrication to the o-rings. Connect fuel supply line. Insert special plugs into the place of original injectors, which are located on the cylinder.
For models 18-19, you can discard the original oil pump.
